STUDIES IN THE LIFE OF CHRIST.

Subject: The Boyhood of Jesus.—Luke ii: 40-52.

Golden Text: And Jesus increased in wisdom and statue, and in favor with God and man.—Luke ii: 52. By Rev. J. E. Gilbert, D. D., Secretary of American Society of Religious Educa cunneutrion.—After the incident of Jesus in the temple, studied last week, eighteen years were passed in obscurity. In the home at Nazareth. No one can tell, although surmisings have been many, why the inspired perman was silent concerning those years. It is quite enough for us to know that the Hoy Spirit did not wish to know what traspired. The sacred writer, has informed its that the noisy child was subject to his mother and legal father, and that Ho grow in wiscom, stature and favor. The laws of growth were observed and favor. The laws of growth were observed in the great as in the lives of all men. There is meeded a period of ratirement such inself and consider the great problems of life. Without question Jesus was palor the strict discipline common in those days in Jesush homes, and Ho doubless learned the Scriptures as did every boy, attending the Synagogue for that purpose. At thirty, inc also for introduction to the priesthood, esta was for begin His career.

FULDERING SET (verses 1, 2, 8).—The introduction of lesus was made by his own cosish, else mentas his scaller, known atterwards as John the Baptist, who came as a reformer. He selected the country about Jordan, where he preached with fervor. His theme was repentence, the same with which Jesus began. His ministry, wafark 1:15.) His call was for a change of life, the breaking away from sin, a turning to God. He assigned as a reason tor such change in the mind and life if the people, that the kingdon of heaven, one tidings more acceptable. During all the centuries from the cupitivity onward the nation had longed for nutleng so much as the restoration of the kingdon as it was under David. Subjection to foreign domination had proved a bitter experience, from which all desired relef. Hence John was welcomed as a messenger of glad liances. Moreover, his appearance was it utilities of the following probably gave them influence among the people, who held them with peculiar reverence, John, the Septice lang war, does not maker. That style of living probably the great Redeemer as he preached repentance. With incomparable brainful pentance of the position of denounced that who had divided the nation into factions and had been diligant in the great faction of the public teachers of religion. 3 oah did not be public teachers of religion. 3 oah did not be public teachers of religion. 3 oah did not be public teachers of religion. 3 oah did not be public teachers of religion. 3 oah did not be public teachers of religion. 4 oah did not seen the favorities of heaven, and despited the rest of many thind as dogs. To them blood was evolutionable the keeping of retained as mementoes of an early day and marks of superior distributions and the public men of his time could not see heaving of the superior distributions that they must not longer regard their descent, for God was to religion to the public men of his time could not see heaving of the superior distributions that the divine will-nigh exhausted. All though the centuries, even in the favorities of the country of the superior distribution of the exodus, they had been and through the centuries, even in the favorities of the country of the country of the favorities of the country of the co

Join referred to the Messiah and to the better day to be ushered in under Him.

BEFLECTION.—The prominent points deserve emphasis: 1. Every man must be measured by his relation to Christ, While living he is classed as friend or foe. Multitudes of men, accounted great, have lived, struggled and died, to be forgotten. But he who preached righteousness and proclaimed Messiah was reater than all who preceded him. The life devoted to Christ is one of immortal honor. 2. See here is the interdependence of persons and events. The Lord Jesus did not begin his career without reference to others. He did not undertake Jis mission independently, but He identified Himself with the foremost progacher and reformer of the age. Thus he gained disciples from among the disciples of John. This is not evolution, but continuity. The kingdom of heaven sweeps on through the centuries, one worker beginning where another ends. (John, 19: 38.)

tee Ready for New Year.

The Committee on Grounds and Buildings held a long meeting last night, but all the work disposed of related to the winding up of the department's affairs for the present fiscal year and to preparing for the next, which begins on February last.

The pay rolls and bills were approved and a number of routine matters were brought to the attention of the body.

A number of requests for salary increases were made, but on motion of Mr. Bottom, they were referred to a sub-committee, composed of Messrs, Ellett, Burton and Washer, to inquire if the requests were based on good grounds.

The committee will, at its next meeting, with the ald of Colonel Cutshaw, prepare a list of the wants of the department to be asked for in the next annual budget.

world close in his chilling embrace, the scuth wind came, laden with the fragrence of flowers and the breath of sunner climes, and blew upon the sleeping giant until his class relaxed; his fetters were broken. The temperature rose until at midnight Wednesday it was above ferty degrees and has not since then fallen to or below the freezing point. The warm wave and the cold wave met; and the meeting caused a precipitation of since; which began about 4:30 A. M. yesteday and continued until after daylight. The ground was dry and hard, and the snow stuck until the warmth of the rising sun attacked it, and by noon the snow was swept away as by a mighty broom wherever the sun had struck upon it. The temperature rose during the day until it was well above 40, and remained there all day. In the evening the mercury stubbornly felt, until at 10 P. M. it was again near the freezing read. P. Meanwhile the thaw following the change in temperature had the effect of spoiling skating, or of making it unsafe, not to mention the fall of snow upon it. The snowfall measured hardly more than an inch, and much of it had disappeared before evening.

The indications are now of another fall in temperature, though hardly so decidedly a drop as that of the early days of the week. It may be that the lee will still be safe for the skaters with a day or two more of freezing temperature.
